
This is neither 1602, 1612, nor 1622.
I have compared it with those three copies in the 1st Folio.

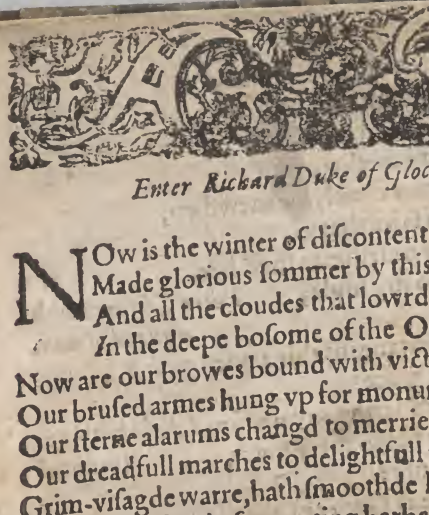
The above Note by Mr. Forster.

B 1934



Enter Richard Duke of Gloc

NOw is the winter of diſcontent
Made glorious ſommer by this
And all the cloudes that lowrd
In the deepe boſome of the O
Now are our browes bound with vic
Our bruſed armes hung vp for monu
Our ſterne alarums changd to merrie
Our dreadfull marches to delightfull
Grim-viſagde warre, hath ſmoothde
And now in ſtead of mounting barbe
To fright the ſoules of fearefull adue
He capers nimbly in a Ladies chambe
To the laſciuious pleaſing of a loue.
But I that am not ſharpe for ſportiue
Nor made to court an amorous look
I that am rudely ſtampt, and want lo
To ſtrut before a wanton ambling N
I that am curtaild of this faire propo
Cheated of feature by diſſembling n
Deformd, vnfiniſht, ſent before my t
Into this breathing world halfe mad
And that ſo lamely and vnfaſhionab
That dogs barke at me as I halt by th
Why I in this weake piping time of Haue no delight to paſſe away the t
Vnleſſe to ſpie my ſhadow in the Su
And deſcant on mine owne deformi
And therefore ſince I cannot proue
To entertaine theſe faire well ſpoke
I am determined to proue a villaine
2267 And hate the idle pleaſures of theſ
Plots haue I laid, inductions dange

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE Richard III (STC 22317) LONDON, 1605 NATIONAL LIBRARY OF SCOTLAND (Bute.51